tion may be experienced by the least movetion between the planet and the top of a tree or corner of a house being easily disturbed. One may hold his finger before his nose, and, with his gaze fixed on the star, turn his nead and the heavenly body has apparently changed its posation.

Expanation is made of the phenomenon by taking, as an illustration, the common illusion which produces a wavering of objects when first one eye and then the other is closed. It is the simplest of astronomical wenders, yet hundreds of persons have been puzzled, and some really rightened, by the sight of the "wobbling" planet.

Doctor irl R. Hicks, a St. Louis astronomer, says that Jupiter is very interesting just now, and is brighter than usual. The earth is passing between the star and the sun, and the brilliancy of Jupiter is due to the fact that the earth has its whole diameter toward the planet and is drawn considerably nearer. tion between the planet and the top of a
